

Pignut Hickory

Carya glabra

- A member of the Hickory family, the Pignut Hickory is common throughout the Southeastern United States.
- Producing edible fruit, the pignut hickory nut is not as popular as the other members in its family, such as the pecan and walnut, but has been widely used in earlier times as a food source for native people in this region.
- Hickory wood is highly desired for its hardness, and is commonly used to make furniture, tool handles, as firewood, and for different cooking purposes.*
