

Tulip Poplar

Liriodendron tulipifera

- Not a true poplar, a family which contains species such as the famous Quaking Aspen (Populus tremuloides), as well as willows and cottonwood trees.
- The Tulip Poplar is most closely related to the Magnolia family, characterized by large flowering trees, which can be seen both in the Southern Magnolia and the Tulip Poplar.
- Tulip Poplar is also known to produce massive amounts of cotton-like pollen in the spring, and when in larger strands containing multiple trees, it resembles snow when it falls.
